In 2012 Liechtenstein will celebrate the 300th anniversary of the acquisition and union of the Principality’s Lower Country (Unterland) and its Upper Country (Oberland) in 1712 by Prince Johann Adam Andreas of Liechtenstein (16. 9. 1657 Brno - 16. 6. 1712 Vienna). In 1699 Prince Johann Adam Andreas of Liechtenstein purchased the Domain of Schellenberg and on June 9, 1712 the County of Vaduz, bringing the two areas together.

Later, in 1719 during a reign of prince Anton Florian (1656-1721), the unified territory of Liechtenstein was elevated to the Imperial Principality of Liechtenstein under the Holy Roman Empire (as the last and 343th sovereign entity), making the Princely Family of Liechtenstein a member of the Council of Princes in the Imperial Diet of the Holy Roman Empire. This marked the beginning of Liechtenstein's political representation in Europe and an important step towards its formation into an independent state in 1806 when Liechtenstein attained its sovereignty through its admission to the Rhine Confederation.

The 300th anniversary will be celebrated with gatherings throughout the year along with festivities planned for the week of June 6-10 in Vaduz. Over the course of the year there will be historical lectures, special projects at the Liechtenstein schools as well as a special exhibition at the Liechtenstein National Museum from April 5-October 15 commemorating the occasion.

The year’s highlight will be the “Oberland Fest” on June 9, which is planned to be celebrated throughout the city of Vaduz with music and cultural activities paying tribute to the history, sovereignty and identity of Liechtenstein.

Historic Association Liechtenstein and Regional Museum in Mikulov, under auspice of Dr. Michal Hasek governor of South-Moravian Region, organise an exhibition „The Prince Hans-Adam I of Liechtenstein, His Life and Work“. The exhibition will be open in March 31, 2012 by H. S. H. Reigning Prince Hans-Adam II and governor JUDr. Michal Hašek.

LIECHTENSTEIN BECOMES 26TH MEMBER OF THE SCHENGEN AREA

On December 13 the EU’s Interior Ministers voted in Brussels in favor of adding Liechtenstein to the Schengen Area. On December 19 Liechtenstein formally became part of the territory comprised of European countries that have implemented the Schengen Agreement in which internal border controls are eliminated allowing for customs-free cross-border travel with other Schengen Area members.

Over the course of 2011, EU officials visited Liechtenstein three times to conduct evaluations of Liechtenstein’s implementation of technical requirements involved in joining the Schengen Area. The Agreement also entails closer coordination with all members on issues such as visas, cross-border policing, legal cooperation, and matters addressing migration and asylum.

10 YEARS LIECHTENSTEIN FIU

November 2011 marked the 10 year anniversary of the Liechtenstein Financial Intelligence Unit (FIU), the responsible authority to receive, analyze and disseminate financial intelligence to fight money laundering, organized crime and terrorist financing. To mark the occasion, on November 9 roughly 70 guests from Europe and around the world attended a symposium in Vaduz with the title “Financial Intelligence – Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow.” Hosted by René Brülhart, Director of the Liechtenstein FIU, guests included Dr. August Hanning, former President of the German Federal Intelligence Service, as well as Juan Zarate, former Deputy Assistant to the President and Deputy National Security Advisor for Combating Terrorism during the George W. Bush Administration and current Senior Adviser at the Washington, DC-based think tank Center For Strategic and International Studies.

Liechtenstein FIU Director René Brülhart said that it is essential to sustain and build upon networks and partnerships in order to support international efforts to combat money-laundering, organized crime and terrorist financing. Juan Zarate commented that only with the help of international partners can one properly analyze and make findings on what is going on and what potential threats exist, which is central to security. Looking back, Zarate pointed out in particular the US cooperation with the Liechtenstein FIU with regard to the war in Iraq. He described how Liechtenstein played a key role in the freezing of a jet belonging to the regime of Saddam Hussein and its return to the new Iraqi government, a symbolic but important act.

Dr. August Hanning said that even as Europe is dealing with issues such as tax evasion it is important to be considerate of all nations and come to a consensus, saying that this is an understanding that Liechtenstein has brought to fruition in the past few years. “I believe that only through close cooperation in Europe can we combat money-laundering. Today the Liechtenstein FIU is contributing a large part to this effort,” Hanning added. Klaus Tschütscher, Prime Minister of Liechtenstein, remarked that “…the FIU has done a lot for Liechtenstein’s reputation and will continue to play a fundamental role in the future. Today Liechtenstein is considered a reliable and respected partner in the world. The FIU has played a large role in that.”

LIECHTENSTEIN INVESTMENT MARKET MEETS TO DISCUSS 310 BILLION EURO VENTURE CAPITAL

For the second time this last November, the Liechtenstein Government supported two conferences within the Liechtenstein Investment Market (LIM): The European Venture Market (EVM) and the European Fundraising Market (EFM). All together more than 350 experts attended the meeting.

The EFM is to be considered a platform for general and limited partners as well as family offices to network and to exchange experiences. The general topic of the event in 2011 was: Alternative Investments – A Necessity for the Future of Europe? This event is a unique platform to identify new investors for private equity and venture capital funds. Besides the classical fundraising the EFM is an ideal opportunity to discuss investments, trends and innovative products.

The participants of the LIM represent an investment potential of more than 310 billion Euros. This is an enormous potential for companies who are seeking venture capital. The aim of the EVM is to match innovative companies with well-heeled entrepreneurs. Over 40 entrepreneurs from all four corners of the world attended the conference and more than 30 investors such as Aster Capital, ABB Technology, Mountain Club and Robert Bosch Venture Capital found new investment opportunities.

Liechtenstein is the fourth smallest state in Europe, but thanks to extraordinarily successful industry and services sector, it is one of the countries with the world’s highest standard of living and GDP. In the 1st half of 19th century, it was a poor agricultural country in Rhein valley. Between 1860s and 1918, the Principality of Liechtenstein was represented abroad by the Austrian-Hungarian empire. During the 1st world war, the principality was a neutral country. In 1920s, Liechtenstein concluded postal, monetary and customs union with Switzerland.

In 1919, principality opened an embassy in Bern and later also in Vienna, but its application for membership in League of Nations was not accepted, although the United Kingdom and France respected its suverenity. Czechoslovakia was between the countries that voted against its membership. The reason were worries of Czechoslovak government that the recognition of its suverenity would make difficult or even impossible the expropriation of princely estates during the 1st land reform.

Only in August 1938 the diplomatic relations were set up between both countries. Liechtenstein was represented by Swiss envoy in Prague, but only shortly. In March 16, 1939, Switzerland accepted the creation of Protectorat Böhmen und Mähren, closed its legation and transformed it to general consulate. The Liechtenstein never accepted the Nazi occupation of Czechoslovakia and therefore the diplomatic relations were interrupted only “de facto”, not “de iure”.

When Switzerland renewed the diplomatic relations with Czechoslovakia (an exile government in London) in March 1945, the diplomatic relations with Liechtenstein were not restored. Czechoslovak government was not interested in it because there were already plans to confiscate assets of Liechtenstein citizens, as „German” ones. The fact that Liechtenstein was a neutral country and the Liechtensteins were not German citizens and had no German nationality, were not taken into account.

Czechoslovak authorities were even more considerate towards citizens of Austria and Swiss citizens of German nationality than to citizens of the principality. The expropriation of assets of the Liechtenstein’s citizens caused a cold relations between Vaduz and Prague for 64 years. The both countries didn’t recognise each other until September 8, 2009, what was a world curiosity. Since 2011 both countries have exchanged their ambassadors.

Principality of Liechtenstein is a member of United Nations (1990), EFTA (1991), Council of Europe (1978) and many other international institutions. Liechtenstein has 6 embassies (Bern, Vienna, Washington, Berlin, Holy See and New York) and 2 permanent missions (Strasbourg, Genève). In other countries, Swiss embassies provide diplomatic and consular services for the principality and its citizens. In Vaduz are accredited 84 ambassadors with residence mostly in Bern or Vienna. Principality has 2 honorary consulates in Germany and 2 in USA. In Vaduz we can find 40 honorary consulates.

H. S. H. Maria-Pia Kothbauer Princess Liechtenstein presented her credentials to the President of the Czech Republic Mr. Václav Klaus in April 11, 2011.

Liechtenstein Embassy in Vienna is responsible for diplomatic relations with Austria, Czech Republic, UN’s offices and OSCE in Vienna.
